

ALL STAFF GREEN TRAINING

Who should attend?

All staff within individual hospitality and food service businesses.

What will attendees gain?

45% of employees wish to work for a business with a positive approach to the environment and society. Employees are more productive when working for companies that have responsible business programmes. This course will motivate your employees to become active proponents of resource efficiency at home and work.

Attendees will:

- ✓ Learn about resource efficiency and why it matters at home and at work
- ✓ Understand the steps that they should take to support the businesses resource efficiency ambitions
- ✓ Learn three or four cost saving ideas they can apply at home

Workshop content

Our workshop utilises a range of competitions, presentations, discussion groups and other techniques to:

- Engage employees in a discussion about global environmental issues and their relevance to their day-to-day lives
- Explore how employees feel and communicate about working for a business with good environmental and social credentials
- Understand what they can do to support achievement of these credentials
- Learn about actions they can take at home to reduce cost (and potentially win widgets to help them deliver those savings)
- Make a personal commitment to one or more actions to deliver against corporate environmental objectives

What do participants take back to their organisation?

- An understanding of where waste arises and what they can do to prevent it
- An estimate of how much they could save through waste prevention
- An action plan to deliver savings
- A set of KPIs that can be used to assess progress
- A mechanism to embed waste monitoring and cost reduction into the business
